

She Was Askin' For It?

Documentation of marks made on public advertisements
Digital Prints 100 x 43 inches
2008

Photo documentation of the defacement done to this advertisement in the New York City subway system. The advertisement was six-feet tall and prevalent in many of the underground stations. The collection of images includes the diverse spread of vandalized comments, critiques and drawings that were made on the female body in the advertisement.

She Was Askin' For it? (Detail)